FRANCE

Our very own Bordeaux winery, Le Chai au Quai on the banks of the Dordogne.

“France is where it all began for Laithwaite’s in 1969, pioneering direct sales ‘From the Vineyard to your Door’. From Castillon near Bordeaux we branched out gradually across the country, helping to make many off-the-beaten-track regions the household names they are today. Enjoy exploring some of our current, luxury French selections – the quality and variety here are breath-taking.”

ITALY

Paolo Masi, of Masi Renzo, is very familiar to fans of great Chianti

"Laithwaite's has been spreading the gospel of Italian wines and way of life for over 40 years. In Italy vino is all about the relationships with the people tending the vineyards and working in the cellars. Long term stalwarts of our range here today include Farnese, Italy's three-times Winery of the Year ... and Tuscany's brilliant Paolo Masi, friends of ours now for three decades. Alessandro Gallici has been making Prosecco with us for almost 15 years, while our top seller Pillaastro Primitivo is the result of an old partnership with the amazing Puglian cooperative Cantine Due Palme."

AUSTRIA & GERMANY

Riesling vines cling to the steep valley sides high above the Mosel

“Back in the 1970s, the most popular German wines were straight forward, quaffable and medium sweet. Dorrenbacher and Piesporter from the Mosel were our top sellers. Then we met the late Gary Grosvenor who introduced us to the finer end of the German wine spectrum. Come and try a couple of fine, mouthwatering German Rieslings and Austria’s quality equivalent – Grüner Veltliner. If they’re new to you, they will be a revelation!”

“The vineyards of Hungary once supplied the Imperial Russian Court with fine wines. We were the first UK merchants to venture into this remarkable nation in the 1990s and we headed to one particular winery very close to the River Danube. Head winemaker Gábor Laczkó knows exactly what our customers like best and showcases his talents here with four very different, utterly delicious styles.”

THE AMERICAS

Chile's sun-drenched
Elqui Valley produces wines of incredible purity

In 2002 we tasted our first wine from northern Chile's Elqui Valley, next to the Atacama Desert. It was Giorgio Flessati's Viña Falernia – and it blew us away. We are spoiled for choice in Chile today while in neighbouring Argentina, it's Malbec of course that really dazzles our palates. The great Hervé Fabre – a multi award-winning winemaker originally from Bordeaux – leads the charge."

NEW ZEALAND

'The First Lady of New Zealand Wine' Jane Hunter shows Tony round her brilliant estate

"Our role in introducing the UK to the splendour of Kiwi Sauvignon is well documented. It all started in 1986 when Ernie Hunter's Marlborough Sauvignon took our London show by storm. Wow! No one had ever tasted anything quite like it before! Many of our other friends these days were also pioneers of Kiwi wine, like the Nelson region's Seifried family. Come by and try these extraordinarily expressive wines."

AUSTRALIA

Tom Laithwaite at the opening of the new RedHeads winery.

"The Shiraz and Chardonnays the UK first fell in love with nearly 40 years ago remain as popular as ever – they're just better than they've ever been! Our foray into Oz wines began with Bailey's Bundara 1979 and Mitchelton's classic "Rhine" Riesling. Our favourite Aussie winemakers too have got better with age – folks like The Black Stump's Alan Kennett, the 'hairy biker' Bob Berton and those wild-eyed mavericks from RedHeads. Try the wines and remind yourself what makes Australia one of the world's great wine countries."
